Alan BOHM

Masterton is my community. It is where I brought up my family, where I am proud to live, where my business, Waggs of Masterton, flourished. I understand and enjoy business. I have financial training, am passionate about organisations which are well run and well organised. The skill sets I offer to the community and the business of MDC are leadership, financial management, logic and a preparedness to listen to alternative points of view. I believe in collective responsibility and the strength of team decision making. Currently I work at business appraising, sales training and project management. My wife Anne died in 2005. Shona and I married last year, we are a great team. I am a trustee for Hospice Wairarapa, a Rotary member and I was chairman for the first Cancer Society Relay for Life. I enjoy being involved in my community; I believe I can add value to Masterton.
